code 2. Modification of scene I want to do the work on the following, and I have got the source code that I want to work on. Restructuring scene Resizing UI positioning Is it a good idea to modify the scene that I have? I have been working on this for a few months already but not found the method to modify the scene with the newest one. Please help me to do these works, I think my problem is about how to do a "modification" of the scene. Thanks for reading. A: If you just want to adjust the scene then I suggest to save your project in the location where you want to do the work (I am thinking here of the project location). Make sure that the project is saved in a save compatible location (i.e. all objects are closed and saved properly). Then you can open the saved project. Use the "Refactor" function (CTRL+ALT+R) to rename the "MyScene" scene to "ModifiedScene". (Make sure that you have the Source folder opened for this activity). The scene should be in the format that the scene normally is. So no "resized" or "positioned" objects, etc. I will assume that there is a layout called "layout1" in the scene (there can also be another layout called "layout2" which you can use as well). Then rename the "layout1" layout to "layout2". After this you can continue your work as usual. Slightly odd three-year-old who has made quite an impression - including being chosen as a video game character. By Olivia Allen From left: Marissa's brother and parents in picture with their daughter A three-year-old girl who has autism and spends most of her days sitting in a car parked near her family home is being lauded for her special skills as a face for a new game. Marissa Lee Wright, who is autistic, was chosen by video game developer Gameloft to become its latest character in its series of 'Adventure Time' videogames. Marissa's mother, Jasmine Wright, is 'ecstatic' that her daughter has been selected, although she admits that she is not sure how many people see the game. Marissa's brother, Nate, said: "My parents are great at gaming. The game came up in conversation 82157476af
